HENRY EDWARDS'S FUNERAL

A TRIBUTE BY WILLIAM WINTER.

SIMPLE SERVICES AT THE ACTOR'S HOME-

THE BODY CREMATED. The funeral of Henry Edwards took place at his home, No. 185 East One-hundred-and-sixteenth-st., yesterday afternoon. The occasion was an exceedingly simple and quiet one, but a considerable number of the dead man's professional and other friends was present. Among them were Joseph Jefferson, Henry , Jarrett, Joseph Levy, Frank Cotter, L. S. Gurney Colonel T. Allston Brown, Joseph Tooker, Daniel H. Harkins, F. F. Mackey, C. W. Couldock, Sherry Corbyn, Louis Aldrich, A. M. Palmer, B. T. Riugeld, Percy Winter, Louis Harrison, George Conway, John Moore, Frank Drew and Harrison Grey Fiske.

The service began with the hymn "Rock of Ages," sung by a male quartet, and after this William Winter made an address as follows: made an address as follows:

"I heard a voice from Heaven saying unto me:

"I heard a voice from Heaven saying unto me:

Write, Blessed are the dead which die in the Lord, from henceforth. Yea, saith the spirit, that they may rest from their labors; and their works do follow them.

"They shall hunger no more, neither thirst any more, neither shall the sun light on them, nor any heat.

"There shall be no more death, neither sorrow nor crying, neither shall there be any more pain; for the former things are passed away.

"Behold, the tabernacle of God is with men, and He will dwell with them.

"For the Lamb which is in the midst of the throne shall feed them, and shall lead them unto living fountains of water, and God shall wipe away all tears from their eyes."

The Bible belongs not to the Church, but to the work. In those touching words which are taken from it—words which are inspired precisely as the words of shakespear are often the Bible that the glow and the grandeur of imaginative life pricipation of the present of the grandeur of imaginative life pricipation of the present in the collection of personal immortality and of an existence of happiness beyond the grave which is upulse of the human mind.

If he voice that here is hushed forever could but the collect that here is hushed forever could but look upon this seemed a living word: the hope that ought to cherist wondth us would be flashed into every heart. In the religion which depends upon printed documents and which might be seriously imperilled, if not overthrown, by typographical matakes—the friend for whom we mourn did not purh is trust. He was, nevertheless, a deeply religion, the analogies of nature and the testionless of literature (which is the highest expression of humanity) point to one and the same conclusion, personal immortality, and continuous, unendia every somal immortality, and continuous, unendia every somal immortality, and continuous, unendia every level that and he lived in accordance with his belief. Purity, charity, kindness and ulois aspiration were the laws of his life in the logic of the words of the religion. In a conversation, also deeply interested, and he was deeply interested, and he was deeply litterested, and he saked me this life in helping ofter people and it will be the logic of the words of the religion. It wish that I could say anything that the life in helping ofter people and the was the same and the was deeply litterested, and he asked his glood. And Dr. Bellows alsowed him and that our teams to the heart of the hear legacy than that could takent and fritted readed, affection and faithful memory.

Equally in life and in art success is dependent on sincerity and sympathy. Henry Edwards was gomine and human. I do not suppose that any one to whom he was known ever thought of him without a sudden feeling of kindness and pleasure. The mention of his name always brought a smile. Twenty-two days ago I clasped his hand for the last time. He was at once I clasped his hand for the last time. He was at once I clasped his hand for the last time. He was at once my mind then the selfsame impression that he had produced at every meeting between us during the many years of our friendship—the impression of absolute goodness, benevolence, simplicity and truth. He was a man whom it was natural to love, for every impulse of his heart was an impulse of his heart was an impulse of bindy interest in the welfare and happiness of others. And now that the smile is frozen on his face, now that the cheery voice can speak no more, now that the lund hand will never be stretched forth again in greeting, our way grows welfare and happiness of others. And now that the smile is frozen on his face, now that the cheery voice can speak no more, now that the kind hand will never be stretched forth again in greeting, our way grows very lonely and cold.

"His memory long will live alone

"His memory long will live alone

"His memory long will live alone

In all our hearts, as mouraful light,

That broods above the fallen sun

And dwells in heaven half the night."

In the awful presence of death all vanity is rebuked, all pride becomes humility, all the greatness of the world is a mist that drifts away. Let us endeavor, while there is yet time, to learn the lesson of our bereavements, to look at death as a great and solemn fact, if draws nearer and nearer to each one of us every hour we live. "Man gooth to his long home, and the mourners go about the streets."

There is no more but this. "Earth to earth. Ashes to ashes. Dust to dust."

"Sleep sweetly, tender heart, in peace!

Sleep, holy splitt, blessed soil,

While the stars burn, the moonk increase,

And the great ages offward roll."

Mr. Winter closed his address by repeating the Lord's Prayer, and then the quartet sang "Angels Ever Bright and Fair." The body was immediately placed in a hearse and taken to the crematory at Fresh Pond, L. I. Mrs. Edwards was not able to accommany it, and it was attended only by William Winter and his son Percy and the undertaker in charge of the funeral. In their presence the body was placed in the furnace at a few minutes before 5 o'clock, and at 9 last night it was in ashes.

EXCELLENT GAMES OF TENNIS.

ANOTHER DAY'S PLAY AT THE ORANGE CLUBS TOURNAMENT.

Play was continued yesterday in the tennis tourns ment of the Orange Lawn Tennis Club. The finals in the mixed doubles and the gentlemen's double were played with the result that Miss Cahill and W. V. Johnson won the former, while Clarence Hobart and R. R. Perkins were the victors in the latter. Today the finals in both the ladles' and the gentlemen's singles will be contested. The winners of the latter will then play Clarence Hobart for the championship of

New-Jersey and the big Silver cup. The most interesting match of the day was between Miss Mabel Cahill and W. V. Johnson against Mrs. W. Fellowes Morgan and Robert R. Perkins. The first set was closely fought from the beginning, and after five-aff had been called the excitement was intense. Long rallies were ended either by a hard drive of Mrs. Morgan, or a well placed stroke by Miss Cahill. The net drivse of the former were magnificent, and when she got a chance to hit the ball at the net, the point was usually hers. As the score shows, the victory of Miss Cahill and her partner was by close margins.

In the finals of the doubles Charence Hobert and R. R. Perkins had little trouble in defeating W. V. Johnson and W. H. Condict, the Princeton players. The winner of the singles will be either Richard Stevens or W V. Johnson, who contest the finals this afternoon, and the victor then plays Mr. Hobart.

Results of yesterday's play are as follows: Gentlemen's singles, second round-Richard Stevens, of 5 George C. C., best W. A. Larned, of Cornell, 6-4, 6-2. Third round-Richard Stevens beat G. T. Maxwell, of Gentlemen's doubles, third round-R. R. Perkins and Clarence Hobart, of the New-York L. T. C., beat C. S. Ketlogg and W. H. Spier, of Monteinir, 6-2, 6-4. Final round-Clarence Hobert and R. E. Perkins beat W. V. Johnson and W. H. Condiet, of Princeton, 6-3, 6-4, 6-3, Mixed doubles, final round-Miss Mabel Cabill and . V. Johnson best Mrs. W. Fellowes Mergen and W. V. Johnson beat Mr. R. R. Perkins, 7-5, 6-4.

MEETING OF THE UNION LEAGUE CLUB.

THE CRIGINAL OF AN IMPORTANT DISPATOR SENT BY GENERAL SHERMAN.

The Union League Club held its final meeting for the year last night. There was a fair attendance Chauncey M. Depew presided, and J. Seaver Page, the secretary, was at his post. An interesting do ument was presented to the club and made public. It was the original dispatch which General Sherman sent to General Johnson demanding his unconditional surrender. The dispatch was dated April 26, 1865, ton, commander Confederate Armies: I have replied from Washington to my communication of April 18. command, and not attempt civic negotiations. I there fore demand the surrender of your army on the same terms as were given to General Lee at Ap pomattox, of April 9 inst., purely and simply.

"W. T. SHERMAN, Major-General." The dispatch has been in the possession of C. G. Eddy since its writing. He was a telegraph operator attached to General Sherman's staff. General Sherman gave him the dispatch, with Instruc-tions to telegraph it to General Kilpatrick, in the front, with the request that he forward it by flag front, with the request that he forward it by flag of truce. After the dispatch was sent General Sherman gave the original to Mr. Eddy, who asked for it. Mr. Eddy lives now in Roanoke, Va., and pro ing that he knew of no more fitting place for the dispatch than the Union League Club, where it could be framed and hung under General Sherman's portrait

An interesting letter was also received from John Jay returning thanks for his election as an honorary nember of the club, and eulogizing its history and deeds. This letter will be printed and preserved in the archives of the club.

Mr. Depew gave some pleasing reminiscences of his visit to Galena. The following members were elected: Visit to Galcia. The following members were elected: Edward P. Fowler, of No. 38 West Fortieth-st.; James W. Perry, of No. 32 Nassan-st.; Thomas Denny, Ir., of No. 6 West Thirty-fourth-st.; James W. Sands, of No. 5 and 7 Dey-st.; Macomb G. Foster, of No. 32 Fulton-st.; Edward T. Bell, of Paterson, N. J.; ex-Governor Alexander H. Rice, of Boston, Mass.

MANHATTAN BEACH ROTEL OPENED.

SEVERAL IMPROVEMENTS MADE-A LARGE CROWD PRESENT.

The large number of people who visited the Manhattan Beach Hotel yesterday, which was its opening day for the season, found that a number of improve ments had been made in the building and the grounds since last year's closing. The most notable change is the removal of Pain's fireworks inclosure some 2,000 feet west of its former position. This brings the fireworks much nearer to the hotel. The large picule pavilion which stood on the lawn between the Manhattan Beach Hotel and the Oriental Hotel also has een moved to the north of the railroad track and now forms the grandstand to the fireworks inclosure. An iron bridge, beginning at the "entrance to the parior cars," crosses the railroad track and enters the second story of the pavilion or grandstand of the fireworks enclosure, the seating capacity of which has been inreased from 12,000 to 15,000.

These changes leave an unbroken stretch of ground etween the Manhattan Beach Hotel and the Oriental Hotel, which is being sodded and laid out in walks and flower beds. A number of improvements have been made in the hotel itself. Great inconvenience has seen caused in past seasons by having the bar of the parroom placed in the centre of the room. This has been changed, so that now the bar runs around three sides of the room, leaving the centre free for patrons. The seating capacity of the dining-room has been efflarged until 2,500 persons can be accommodated at one

Conterno's 9th Regiment band will give two concerts day in the music pavilion until July 1, when Gilmore vill play for the rest of the season. T. F. Silleck, nanager of the Manhattan Beach and Oriental hotels, ooks forward to a prosperous seas

JUGIRO'S COUNSEL REBUKED.

PLAIN LANGUAGE BY THE COURT OF APPEALS IN DENYING A MOTION FOR REARGU-

MENT OF THE CASE. Albany, June 11 (Special) .- The Court of Appeals was greatly displeased over the action of counsel who have engineered the case of Jugiro, the murderer. The Court recently denied the application made to it to permit a reargument of the appeal by Jugiro from the judgment of the Supreme Court. In doing so it gave the following lecture, in a memorandum per and his case was access. The judgment was here affirmed October 7, 1890, and the following opinion written:

"The record does not contain a single exception, and we are unable to perceive any reason for bringing the appeal, except to delay the execution of the judgment. THE CZAR'S GITT TO SENATOR STANFORD. San Francisco, June 11 (Special).-The art museum f Leland Stanford University will soon receive a valable collection of Russian minerals presented by the Czar to Senator Stanford. It includes 800 specimens, valued at $30,000. Many of the specimens are extremely rare, and are taken from the Royal Museum in St. Petersburg. It is the first instance on record in which the Czar has permitted anything to go our of this museum. Several large specimens of malachite exceed in beauty anything of the kind outside of exceed in beauty anything of the kind outside of Russia. There are also specimens of from work done by a secret process in Siberia by convict labor. In return Senator Stanford will send to the Czar a complete collection of California minerals, with all data obtainable about placer gold-mining, in which the Russian authorities are greatly interested, as they obtainable the systematic development of the placer mines of the Amoor River.

EPISCOPALIANS AND CHURCH UMITY.

Watertown, N. Y., June 11 .- In the Central New-York Diocesan Convention, which adjourned last even-ing, Dr. Egar, of Rome, offered a resolution, reciting that as the House of Bishops has declared the essential conditions of true unity in the Church of Christ to be the Holy Scriptures, the two sacraments, the Nicene Creed and the historic episcopate, it is inconsistent with loyalty to the Bishops, with duty to the Church and with fidelity to the truth for members of the Episcopal Church to unite with societies professing to promote Christian unity on other bases or to frequent the services of denominations which do not ac-copt these conditions. There was a lively discussion of the resolution and a motion to strike out the last clause was adopted—39 to 34. Subsequently the mat-ter was tabled. The diocese elected the following of Syracuse; Dr. Brainard, of Auburn, and W. T. Gib son, of Utica; laymen-T. D. Green, of Syracuse A. H. Sawyer, of Watertown; D. O. Salmon, of Syra cuse, and J. R. Van Wagener, of Oxford. Ge Gardner, of Syracuse, was re-elected treasurer

A MUSICAL ANNIVERSARY.

TWENTY-FIVE YEARS CHOIR MASTER

THE PRIENDS OF DR. A. H. MESSITER UNITE

"IN HONORING HIM AT TRINITY CHURCH. One of the finest and most elaborate musical service that have ever been heard in Trinity Church was given there yesterday morning by a choir of 110 men and twenty boys. The service was that appointed for the Feast of St. Barnabas, and the special music was to celebrate the twenty-fifth anniversary of Dr. A. H. Messiter's incumbency as organist and choirmaster of Trinity. The church was crowded to the doors, although the admission was only by ticket. A few minutes before the service began the regular choir of the church assembled in the choir-room behind the altar, and the Rev. Dr. Morgan Dix, the rector, presented and invested Dr. Messiter with the hood of his degree. The hood was given by the choir and is handsomely made of red and yellow silk.

E. M. Bowman, ex-assistant waganist of Trinity, playe Smart's "Festival March" in D for the prelude. The service began with the processional hymn "Sing, ye Faithful," by Dr. Messiter. This was sung with fir effect by the "old boys" as the procession emerged from the vestry door, marched down the south aisle and proceeded up the centre of the church to the The regular choir took their usual places and the special singers went to their seats on the plan form which had been built in front of the pews to accommodate the increased number. The anthem

A. H. MESSITER.

"Lord have mercy upon us, Christ have mercy upon us," by Gounod, was sung by the "old boys," Dr. Messiter accompanying them on the chancel organ A high celebration of the Holy Communion was then sung by Dr. Dix. The Rev. Mr. Spong was the deacon the Rev. Dr. Mulchahey, of St. Paul's Chapel, the gospeler; the Rev. J. Nevett Steele the epistoler, and the Rev. Harry Bouman master of ceremonies. regular choir sang the Kyrle by Messiter; the offertory anthem, "How Lovely Are Thy Dwellings Fair, Spohr; the Benedictus, from Gounod's St. Cecilia Mass and Stainer's Pater Noster. The special choir sang the Credo, Sanctus, Agans Dei and Gloria in Excelsis, from "Messe des Orpheonistes," Gounod.

Victor Baier, assistant organist, conducted the music. The recessional hymn "Now Thank We All Our God ' was sung by the whole choir of 130 voices in unison, which gave Dr. Messiter full opportunity to display the obligato accompanying for famous in church musical circles. The procession. which extended from the chancel steps around the church to the vestry doors, filed out singing the hymn and Mr. Bowman afterward played as a postlude

Arthur Henry Messiter was born in Fron setshire, England, in 1834. When he reached the age of seventeen years he was sent to Charles McKorkell, of Northampton, for four years. He confined himself to plane teaching for ten years after leaving McKor kell and came to this country at the end of that time He offered his services as volunteer tenor to Dr. Henry Stephen Cutler, the organist of Trinity, and was ac ed. In June, 1866, he succeeded Dr. Cut-The degree of Doctor of Music was conferred on him a few years ago. His sacred compositions are well known throughout the country and the influ ence he has had upon the church-music of America

A number of letters have been received by the sec retary of the committee of arrangements from eminent English composers. Gounod has also written. He In December, 1889, the defendant was convicted of murder in the first degree. He appealed to this court, and his case was argued in June, 1890, a few days large. "I beg of you kindly to express my thanks to leave the approach of the committee of arrangements from eminent English composers. Gound has also written. He says argued in June, 1890, a few days large." I beg of you kindly to express my thanks to Dr. Messiter for the zeal he has displayed in making my music known in America. Unfortunately America has profited by it more than I have. I hope that the has profited by it more than I have. I hope that the composers of the future will be more happy."

A dinner was given to Dr. Messiter has night at Mazetti's, and covers were laid for 150. A. G. Wood, who has been connected with the choir for over forty years, presided. Dr. Messiter sat at his right, Dr. Dix at his left, and the other places of honor were occupied by Dean Hoffman, the Rev. Dr. Mulcahey and the Rev. Dr. J. Nevett Steele. Charles Forster, on behalf of the "old boys," presented a beautiful silver breakfast and tea service to Dr Messiter. The guests were the Rev. Messrs. William M. Geer, Alban Richey, W. E. Johnson, T. H. Sill, Harry Bauman, P. A. H. Brown and Stephen P. Nash, E. K. Wright, E. H. C. Goodwin, Charles H. Contoit, Leo Kofler, Bowie Dash and W. A. Dancan. Duncan.

THE FREE-COINAGE ADVOCATES.

MEETING OF THE COMMITTEE IN NEW-YORK-SENATOR STEWART'S FIGURES.

Washington, June 11.-The meeting of the Free-Colage Silver Committee, which was to have been held Washington on June 18, will take place on the same date at the Hoffman House, New-York, instead. The proposition for a compromise on the coinage on the products of the American mines is not regarded favorably by the committee, and they say that they will have nothing but free coinage in the fullest sense of the term, and assert that they have enough votes to carry it through the next Congress.

Senator Stewart said to a "Star" reporter to-day that he was confident that a free coinage bill could be passed through the next Congress over the President's Of course, he says, there can be no doubt about a two-thirds vote for free coinage in the House, and in he Senate it has been shown that there is a majority If all the Democrats in the Senate will vote to pass he bill over the President's veto, Mr. Stewart says there will be no trouble about the matter.

The Republican votes in the Senate that Mr. Stewart counts on as sure for free coinage are two from Call-fornia, one from Oregon, two from Washington, two rom Idaho, two from Montana, two from Nevada, two from Colorado, one from Wyoming, two from South Dakota, one from North Dakota, two from Kansas, two om Nebraska and one from Pennsylvania. from Nebraska and one from Fransylvana. Canonical Stockbridge and Davis he regards as doubtful. The votes counted as sure would give free colunge sixty votes if the Democratis voted solidly for free colonge, as policy might induce them to do. Fifty-nine votes are chough to carry the bill over the veto. The only Senators on the Democratic side whom Mr. Stewart regards as doubtful are Gray, McPherson and Vilas.

NO ACTION YET ON THE 4 1-2 PER CENT LOAN. Washington, June 11.—Secretary Foster says that no action will be taken in regard to the 4 1-2 per cent lean for some time yet and certainly not before his return from Ohlo, where he expects to go next week

PREPARING FOR THE POACHERS. Washington, June 11 .- A telegram was received at the Treasury Department from Captain Hooper, commanding the revenue steamer Corwin, at San Franvonid sail on receipt of orders from Washington. This was in response to a telegram instructing him to have the Corwin prepared for a cruise to Hehring Sea with as little delay as possible. Secretary Foster had a conference with the President to-day in regard to the scal fisheries, and it was decided, so it is said, to take imme diate steps for the enforcement of the agreement with Great Britain for a closed season, and to have the revenue steamers and naval vessels co-operate with the revenue steamers and haval vessels co-operate with the English fleet in establishing an effective patrol of the scaling grounds. It is therefore expected that the Corwin will sail in a day or two with orders for the revenue cruters Rush and Bear to warn all scaling ves-sels away from Bebring Sea, and thereafter to seize all vessels found violating the terms of the agreement. Similar orders will probably be issued to the English fleet now near Esquimanit, B. C.

APPOINTMENTS BY THE PRESIDENT. Washington, June 11.-The President has made the following appointment in the Revenue Marine service James H. Rogers to be captain, William H. Cushing t be first lieutenant, and John B. Hull to be see lieutenant. He has also appointed Tsin Ching Chung, of China, to be interpreter to the United States Consulate at Amoy, China.

Standing Committee: Clergymen-H. R. Lockwood, ANOTHER OLD ACTOR DEAD.

CHARLES FISHER'S LONG LIFE ENDED-HIS CAREER.

On the day when the body of the veteran actor Henry Edwards was committed to ashes there died another of the oldest actors of the American stage, who. like him, was an Englishman by birth and had gained his chief distinction in his art in this country, and who had been a member of the same company which made the fame of so many fine players. Charles Fisher died at No. 952 Sixth-ave, yesterday morning. He left the stage at the end of Mr. Duly's season in London last summer, resigned his place in Mr. Daly's company, and stayed in England. He spent the autumn and winter in London and in Suffolk. His health was poor and in March he suffered from an attack of erystpelas. About five weeks ago he returned to this country with wife, in the hope of improvement. The voyage and the change, however, did not prove beneficial. His death was from general debility.

Charles Pisher was born in England and was of good family. He first went on the stage in London in 1844. London for some seven or eight years and had estab lished a considerable reputation when he was engaged by Burton to come to New-York and play in his Chambers Street Theatre. He was most successful there. and after playing many parts of many sorts he joined Wallack's company, of which he was a favorite member at both the Broome-st. and the Thirteenth-st. houses It was here that the actor gained his greatest distinct tion and passed the most important part of his professional career. In 1872 he joined Augustin Daly's company, then at the Fifth Avenue Theatre, in Twenty eighth-st., and he remained with Mr. Daly till last sum mer, when he left the stage, as already related. His stage life, though long in years, was thus compara-tively uneventful, and he saw little of the travel and change of circumstance and environment that gen-erally fill the lives of actors, especially in the case of American actors of twenty or more years ago.

In the time that he acted under Mr. Daly's manage ment Mr. Fisher played fewer parts of great important than while under Mr. Wallack, but his reputation as an artist by no means declined and he was always one of the first favorites with the audiences at Daly's Theatre He was able to do little work in his last season here and the most of the parts in which he had been familiar were taken by others. He played Adam in "As You Like It" through the most of its run a year ago last wipter, and for a few nights he played Jacques.

Mr. Fisher's first wife, who was an actress, died many years ago, and about fifteen years ago he married Miss Brown, a girl of sixteen, who had a subordinate sixty years old. He had a daughter by his first wife who was slightly older than the second.

place in Mr. Daly's company. He was then about In old times Charles Fisher often figured in the old comedies, and he was one of the last of the thin and rapidly lessening group of actors capable of presenting those pieces-wherein, although the substance be nature, the manner is that of elaborate and diversified artifice. When he played Lieutenant Worthington, in The Poor Gentleman," he was the gentleman indeedrefined, delicate, sensitive, simply courageous, sustained by native integrity, and impressive, with a quiet dig his mind; so that when he mistook Sir Robert Bramble or a bailiff, and roused that benevolent Baronet's as tonishment and rage, he brought forth all the comic humor of a delightful situation, with the greatest east and nature. He has played Littleton Coke, Sir Harcourt Courtly, old Laroque-in which he gave a won derful picture of the working of remorse in the frail and failing brain of age-and Nicholas Rue, in "Secrets Worth Knowing," a sinister and thrilling embodiment of avarice and dotage. He has played Dr. Bland, the elegant medical cynic of "Nos Intimes"; De la Tour, the formidable, jealous husband of Henriette, in "Le Patte de Mouche"; Horace, in "The Country Squire" Goldfinch, in which he was airy, sagnelous, dashing, and superb, in "The Road to Ruin"; and Captain Cozzens, nonchalant rascal of "The Knights of the Roune Table," which he embodied in a style of easy magnificence, gay, gallant, courageods, alert, imperturbable and immensely comic. He was the original Matthew Leigh in Lester Wallach's romantic play of "Rosedale" (1863). He acted Joseph Surface, in the days when Lester Wallack used to play Charles, and he always held his own in that superior part. He was equally fine in Sir Peter and Sir Oliver. When the good old play of "The Wife's Secret" was revived in New-York, in 1864, he gave a dignished and impetuous performance of Sir Walter Amyott. I remember him in all these, with equal wonder at his comprehensive variety of talent and admiration for his always adequate skill. saw him as the volatile Ferment, in "The School of Reform," and nothing could be more comic than hi unwitting abuse of General Tarragon, in that bluster-ing officer's own presence, or his equally ludicrous scene of "cross-purposes" with Bob Tyke. He was a perfect type, as Don Manuel Velasco, in "The Com pact," of the gallant, stately Spanish aristocrat. He excelled competition when, in a company that included Holland, Holston, Young, Mark Smith, Robinson whether as the King in "Don Caesar de Bazan" or as Tom Stylus, the literary back, in "Society." He enssed easily from the correct and sentimental Sir Thomas Clifford, of "The Hunchback," to the frivolous Mr. Willowear, of "To Marry or Not to Marry." me could better express than he did, when playing Wellborn, both pride of birth and pride of character. One of his most characteristic works was Hyssop in "The Rent Day." His scope and the rich resources of his experience are denoted in these citations of the work that he has done. It is no common artist who can create and sustain a perfect illusion, and please an audience equally well, whether in such a part a Gilbert Featherstone, the villain, in "Lost in London, er old Baptista in "The Taming of the Shrew." The play-goer who has not seen Charles Fisher as Triplet can scarcely claim that he ever saw the part at all. The quaint figure, the well-saved but threadbare dress, the fortorn air of poverty and suffering commingled with a certain jauntiness and pluck, the profound feeling, the unconscious sweetness and humor, the spirit f mind, gentility and retinement struggling through the confirmed wretchedness of the almost heart-broken hack-who that ever laughed and wept at sight of hin and Gilbert, he enacted the Convict in "Never Too Late to Mend." He was county at home in the garret scene, sitting down, "all joy and hilarity, to write his comedy, can ever forget those details of a true and touching embodiment! His fine skill in play-ing the violin was touchingly displayed in that part and gave it an additional tone of reality. I once saw him acting Mercutio, and very admirable he was is the guise of that noble, brave, frollesome, impetuou young gentleman! The intense vitality, the glancing glee, the intropid spirit—all were preserved; and the rilliant text was spoken with faultless fluency. It is difficult to realize that the same actor who lately set before us that perfect image of comic perplexity, the bland and benevolent Dean in "Dandy Dick," could ever have been the bantering companion of Romeo and truculent adversary of flery Tybait. Yet this contrast but faintly indicates the versatile character of his mind. Mr. Fisher has been upon the American stage since August 50, 1852, when he came forth at Burton's Theatre as Ferment. Later he went to Wallact's and in 1872 he joined Mr. Dany's company, in which he remained till 1800. It may be conjectured that in some respects he resembled that fine comedian, Thomas Dozget, to whom Sir Godfrey Kneller, the painter, said: "I can only copy Nature from the originals before me, while you vary them at pleasure and yet preserve the likeness." Like Dozget, he played in a vein of rich, hearty, Jocose humor and with great breadth of effect and excellent color, the sailor, Bon, in "Love For Love." The resemblance is in mental characteristics, not physique-for Bogret was a slight and sprightly man, whereas Mr. Fisher could represent majesty as well as frolk. After he went to Daly's Theatre he manifested a surprising range of faculty. He first appeared there on October 28, 1872, as Mr. Dornton, in "The Road to Ruin," and on November 19, following, he acted Falstaff for the first time. He presented filter the other Shakespearean parts of Leonato. Armado and Malvollo—the last of these being a model of fidelity to the poet, and already a classic in reputation. He persented the living image of Shakespeare himself (in "Yorlot"), and lis large, broad, stately style gave weight to Don Manuel, in "She Would and She Wouldat"; to that apt type of the refined firstish aristocrat, Sir Geoffrey Champneys, in "Our Boys"; and to many a noble father or benevolent nucle of the adapted French society drama. Just as Dogget was supreme in such parts as Fondlewife, so was Fisher superb in the uzorious husband whom the denurs child wife bamboorles, in the comedies of Molere. difficult to realize that the same actor who lately set before us that perfect image of comic perplexity, the nncle of the scapical French scales Grand. Jasa as Dogget was superme in such parts as Fondlewife, so was Fisher superb in the unorious husband whom the demurs child wife bamboories, in the consedies of Mohere. No man has ever better depicted than he has done a sweet nature shocked by calamity and bowed down with grief, or, as in Joe Chirup, in "Elile," maniliness chastened by affliction and cunobled by true love; yet his impersonation of Fagin was only second to that of J. W. Wallack, Jr., his Moody, in "The Country Girl," was almost trage, in its grim and grizzled wretchedness and smarling wrath; and I have seen him assume to perfection the grant figure and crazy mood of Noah Learoyd, in "The Long Strike," and make that personality a terrible ambodiment of menace. From the time he first acted the comic Major Vavasour, in "Henry Dumbar," no actor of equal quadringes has trod Henry Dunbar," no actor of equal quaintness has trod WILLIAM WINTER.

PETER A. FRASSE. Peter A. Frasse, who died suddenly at the Adelphi Hotel, Saratoga, on Tuesday, was one of the best-known hardware merchants of New-York City. He was born in New-York in 1823, and after being educated in France and Switzerland, entered his father's business in when he succeeded to the management of the business on his father's death in 1849. He was a Republican, but never took an active part in politics. He was a widower and leaves three daughters and one son. John L. Howe, the partner in the firm of Peter A. Frases & Co., and Charles Frases, the son, went to Saratoga on Wednesday and brought the body here yesterday. The funeral will take place to morrow at 1 p. m. at St. Stephen's Protestant Episcopal Church, Forty-sixth-st. and Fifth-ave., and the burial will be at Greenwood Cemetery.

COLONEL ALEXANDER E. SHELDON. Colonel Alexander E. Sheldon, second son of the late Smith Sheldon, died yesterday at the age of fifty at his home in Brooklyn, after a lingering sickness

Colonel Sheldon took a prominent part in the late war. When the war broke out he was studying law at Columbia College, but dropped his studies and went to the front with the 7th Regiment at the first call for troops. He soon wrote home that he had decided to the war through if he lived. His father, through the influence of his friend Thurlow Weed secured him an appointment as second lieuteriant in the noted 4th Infantry of the Regular Army. This was General Grant's old regiment, and General Sheridan was a first lieutenant in it when young Sheldon joined it.

The 4th Infantry reached New-York from Oregon in August, 1861, and joined the Army of the Potomac, and was in every battle fought by that great army to the and of the rebellion. Colonel Sheldon was present and took part in every fight, excepting only the unfortunate battle at Fredericksburg under General Burnside. Young Sheldon was promoted to brever-major in the Regular Army "for conspicuous bravery on the field of An-tietam," and was again promoted to brevet-lientenantcolonel for conspicuous bravery at Gettysburg. At Gettysburg the slaughter of the regular brigade was so great that the company Captain Sheldon was command or wounded. Colonel Sheldon remained in the Army about ten years after the war, when he resigned and joined his father and brothers in the publishing business, and had charge of the business management of "The Galaxy Magazine," which Sheldon & Co. at that time published. ing had less than ten men who were not either killed

JOSIAH P. HUNTOON.

Josiah P. Huntoon died at his home in Paterson, N. J., yesterday from a stroke of paralysis. It is said that never before, in all his long life of seventy-eight years, had he needed a doctor's services, and another point of pride with him was that he had never missed reading his Daily Tribune from the day that it was started by Horace Greeley to the morning of Tuesday last, when he was stricken down with sudden iliness. Mr. Huntoon was one of the life-long subscribers to The Tribune whose letters were published at the time of its repent semi-centennial. He was bern at Montpelier, Vt., in 1818. In 1828 he reached New-York friendless and penniless and secured a place as clerk in a book store. In 1883 he went into the business of roasting and grinding coffee, and his business being carried under by the panic of the next year, he removed to Morris County, N. J., where he taught a district school. In 1841 he settled in Paterson and established coffee and spice mills which a few years ago, on his retirement, passed into the hands of his sons and a partner, under the style of Hantoon, Paige & Co.

Huntoon was a Whig and later a Republican, being one of the founders of that party and active in its council In connection with the late Lewis R. Stelle (whom he survived but a few weeks) and others he established "The Paterson Press" in 1863 as the exponent of the Union sentiments of that section, then without news-paper representation. Mr. Huntoon was an ardent Abolitionist, and in connection with the lats Henry M. Low and others he secretly helped many a fugitive slave through Paterson by the so-called "Underground Railroad" . He had formerly been one of the organizers director in the First National Bank and the Paterson Savings Institution, was president of the Passaic County Board of Chosen Freeholders for several years and also presided over the city Board of Education. He washof striking personal appearance, with his long, patriarchal beard falling nearly to his watst, and thick, cusling locks covering his shoulders. His second wife and seven out of eleven children survive him.

HENRY J. MACDONALD.

Henry J. Macdonald, a member of the Stock Exchange firm of Lounsbery & Co., but better known as a writer on financial subjects, died yesterday afternoon in this city from pneumonia. He had ben ill for two or three months, but only in the last two weeks had his condition alarmed his friends. Mr. Macdonald was fifty-six years old. He was born in the northern part of England, his father being a Methodist clergyman, whose family was of high standing. One daughter of the Rev. Mr. Macdonald is the mother of Rudyard Kipling, and another daughter is the wife of the English artist Burne-Jenes.

Henry Macdonald received a university education at Oxford, but came to this country soon after he had attained his majority. He entered the office of the banking firm of Henry G. Stebbins & Co., but before long he was drawn into newspaper work by writing financial articles for "The Times." His first regular connection with the press was His first regular connection with the press was as financial editor of "The Commercial Advertiser." Late in the sixtles he took the same place on "The World," retiring when the Marble-Hurlbert management was overthrown. Then he became a member of the Stock Exchange house of Lounsbery & Haggin, which was afterward suc-ceeded by Lounsbery & Co. In recent years he was an editorial contributor at times on financial topics to "The Evening Post" and "Harper's Weekly." As a writer, Mr. Mucdouald was peculiarly lucid and direct, and his integrity was universally recognized.

While on "The World" he was conspicuous in a number of sharp newspaper battles on important financial questions, and on his resignation a flattering testimonial to his services for sound finances was prepared by Drexel, a man, Mr. Macdonald won many friends by his noble character and his generous, genial qualities. He was cultivated, and he possessed the equipment of a thorough man of the world. His happiness as an after-dinner eaker was one of the many gifts which were known nly to those who saw all sides of his nature.

only to mose was an all sides of his nature.

Mr. Macdonald married a niece of Judge Danforth, of Rochester, N. Y. His wife survives him. The funeral will be held at the Church of the Holy Trinity, Forlysecond-st. and Madison-ave., at 1:30 o'clock to-morrow.

TENNESSEE OFFICIALS ENTERTAINED.

The delegation of Tennessee officials who have been in hown for the last few days, establishing a financial agency of the State here and negotiating a loan, as authorized by the last Legislature, started for home yesterday after ac-complishing the objects of their mission in a highly satiscomplishing the objects of their mission in a nightly eatis-factory manner. The party consisted of the Governor of Tennessee, John P. Buchanan; the Siste Treasurer, M. F. House; the Controller, J. W. Allen, ex-Controller P. P. Packard, and General "Tom" McConnell, the wellmown popular chairman of the Democratic State Com-The State Government of Tennessee has sought for some time to keep pace with the remarkable progress of the commonwealth and to aid in the development of its boundless resources. Its various forms of indebtedness were refunded by act of the Legislature in 1883, and since then the effort has been made to keep in 1883, and since then the effort has been made to keep the tax rate as low as possible to encourage the investment of capital and, at the same time, make the progress of the State felt in an agreeable way by the taxpayers. As one of the party put it yesterday: "The credit of our State is such that we can borrow all the money we need at the most satisfactory rates, and so we find it better at present to borrow what little we need than to increase our tax rate. Our prosperity can be realized in a measure by a glance at our increase in wealth in the last four years. In 1886 the total valuation of real estate and personal property of Tennossee exclusive of meghandise personal property of Tennessee exclusive of merchandise and radicods was, in round numbers, $225,000,000. To-day it is over $350,000,000. The lean negotiated here was a small one, $250,000. It is to meet the July Interest on the State bonds. The particular need for it arose from the fact and Middle Tennessee.

Before leaving the city yesterday the party were enter-tained at luncheon at the Lawyers' Club by Frank H.
Platt. Besides the visitors there were present ex-Senator Platt, Chauncey M. Depew, Senator Calvin S. Brice, John H. Inman, Frank H. Platt and J. E. Milholland.
